

Call for Papers Volume 06 (December 2014)

The editors of Online – Heidelberg Journal of Religions on the Internet (<http://www.online.uni-hd.de/>) invite researchers of all disciplines to hand in articles on their research dealing with religions on the internet. For our regular next issue 06 (2014) due for publication in December 2014 we are looking forward to receiving the title and a short abstract (max. 250 words) of the planned article until 1st of July.

Online HJRI is an international open-access, peer-reviewed academic journal published by the Institute of Religious Studies at the University of Heidelberg (Germany). The journal is committed to promoting and (theoretically and methodically) advancing scientific research at the interface between religion and the internet.

The editors welcome submissions from all academic disciplines and perspectives (e.g. Religious Studies, Game Studies, Social Studies, Cultural Studies, Media Studies, Theology, Anthropology, etc.) focussing on general and specific issues of religion and new digital media, e.g. religion in video games. Additionally, we encourage authors to review (new) books dealing with subjects relevant to the journal's scopes.

Authors are expected to present their research in terms of relevant theoretical and / or methodological discussions and to be of interest to a wide, but mainly academic audience in a manner intelligible not only to specialists. „Online“ is looking forward to submissions and inquiries of any kind. Please contact online.religion@zegk.uni-heidelberg.de.
