

Table of Contents

Introduction	1
Periodisation in a Global Context Barbara Mittler, Thomas Maissen, Pierre Monnet
Section I
CHRONOTYPOLOGIES
Questions of Space, Time, Class, Race and State
Chronotypologies	13
An Introduction Barbara Mittler, Thomas Maissen, Pierre Monnet
1. Making Periodisation Possible	15
The Concept of the Course of Time (Zeitverlaufsvorstellung) in Historical Thinking Jörn Rüsen
2. 'Islamic Civilisation' as a (Medieval) Problem	29
The Idea of Islamic Modernity in Islamwissenschaft David Moshfegh
3. Temporalities, Historical Writing and the Meaning of Revolution	71
A Eurasian View Alessandro Stanziani

4. Periodisation as Dialectic in a Peasant Discourse from Late Colonial India 89

Milinda Banerjee

5. The Pitfalls of Terminology 107
Uncovering the Paradoxical Roots of Early Modern History
in American Historiography

Justus Nipperdey

6. Historical Timeframes for Stateless Nations 119

Analysing the Colonised Periodisation
Paradox of Palestinian History

Susynne McElrone

Section II

CHRONOLOGICS

Contested Ways of Thinking Time

Chronologics 139
An Introduction

Barbara Mittler, Thomas Maissen, Pierre Monnet

7. The Time of World History 141
Essaying Marshall G. S. Hodgson's Work on Islamicate Societies and Afro-Eurasian World History

Michael Geyer

8. Time and Its Others	173
Contesting Telos through a Sociospatial Analysis of Islamicate Chronotopes Heather Ferguson
9. Transnational Modernism and the Problem of Eurochronology	191
Özen Nergis Dolcerocca
10. The Mythical Medieval	205
Periodisation, Historical Memory and the Imagination of the Indian Nation Anubhuti Maurya
11. Reframing Time to Save the Nation	221
The Jewish Historian as Cultural Trickster Bernard D. Cooperman
12. Nationhood and Imposing Power over Historical Time and Chronology	253
Özlem Çaykent
Conclusion	271
Region, Nation, World Remarks on Scale and the Problem of Periodisation Sanjay Subrahmanyam	